BOXWOOD NURSERIES
MILTON, DELAWARE

To those who love Old English Boxwood:

To the man or woman who has stepped out on a veranda after a rain and has caught that delicate, indescribable fragrance of Old English Boxwood—to those who have seen how perfectly this charming old shrub adapts itself to any setting—the following news will be of particular interest.

Despite the rising prices of almost everything, we are offering this beautiful Boxwood at more attractive prices than ever for the coming planting season.

Every formation and all sizes of this rare shrub are among this wonderful collection—hedges, matched pairs, foundation plantings, beautiful shaped specimens—all of healthy, heavy, luxuriant foliage.

You will find our prices surprisingly reasonable, besides, you know, we guarantee all our Boxwood to live and thrive.

We extend to you a cordial invitation to visit the Nursery—to see the largest collection of fine Boxwood in America. By motor—south from Wilmington over the famous duPont Boulevard, through one of the oldest and most interesting sections of Colonial America.

H. ERNEST CONWELL, Inc.

These New Prices are the lowest that Boxwood plants of fine quality have ever been offered. The high standard of quality is rigidly maintained which has earned for our Boxwood an enviable reputation for heavy, dense foliage formation, uniform quality, and hardiness in transplantation. Field grown plants produce heavy root systems insuring thriftiness.

THESE FOLKS BOUGHT BOXWOOD FROM US---THEY ARE GLAD THEY DID---THEY SAY SO

It was beautiful, healthy and vigorous when it was planted, it still is, and of course each year as it mellows with age it blends more into the finished picture

Matched pairs of these century-old plants placed on either side of a doorway add that inimitable atmosphere of hospitality to any estate; skillfully used in garden plantings it brings the grace and grandeur and romance of generations past within a modern garden wall.
